SCHEDULE "A"

REASONS FOR THE DESIGNATION

The Local Architectural Conservation Advisory Committee at its meeting held 1988 September 26 agreed that the La Salle Park Pavilion was worthy of designation.

The Pavilion, built on 1917 March 24, was a combination dancing pavilion and picnic area which is a rarity for Hamilton park structures. Most structures, apart from the Gage Park Bandshell, usually serve as service buildings incorporating changing facilities, showers and lockers.

La Salle Park, formerly Wabasso Park was purchased for $52,673.00 in 1913 from Mr. P.W. Brown.

The site of La Salle Park is supposed to be the landing point for Sieur de La Salle, an early explorer. A memorial stone commemorating this event was erected on 1922 July 17 and Wabasso Park was renamed La Salle Park in 1926.

In 1928, the management of the Park was turned over to Mr. Maurice L. Smith on a ten-year lease on which to operate an amusement park.

The main architectural features are its rectangular dimensions with a verandah set between two arcaded pavilions (one open and one which was formerly glazed and is now closed) which are decorated with pilasters. The central dormer has a mansard roof and formerly had five bays with three six-paned casement windows in each bay (these windows are no longer in place but have been bricked over).
