STONE SHOP

271 MAIN STREET WEST

One of the oldest buildings in the area, the Stone Shop was built by Allen Nixon in 1800 for use as a blacksmith shop. During the war of 1812, in which Nixon served as a Lieutenant, the Canadian Militia, British and American Forces used the blacksmith shop to repair their equipment and have their horses shod. Mr. Nixon served on the Grimsby Township Council in 1793 as an Assessor.

Nixon and his wife died of cholera in 1813 but the Stone Shop remained in the family for a number of years as a blacksmith shop, before being sold. Since then it has been used as a buggy repair shop, an early automobile repair shop and storage shed before being purchased by the Town of Grimsby for use as a museum.

Built for use as a repair shop in an unconventional style, the rectangular shaped Stone Shop is characterized by its medium pitched gable roof, two end chimneys and a boxed cornice. The walls and base are built of coursed rubble. Visibly located along old Highway 8, the Stone Shop is an important reminder of Grimsby's role in history. Included in the designation are the original exterior features.
