REASONS FOR DESIGNATION

188 Markland Street,
Hamilton, Ontario

The one-storey brick cottage at 188 Markland Street was built in 1892 by the Government of Ontario as a residence for the engineer in charge of the Queen Street Pumping Station located next door. This Pumphouse had been built in 1879 in order to provide a water supply for the recently opened Hamilton Asylum for the Insane, now the Hamilton Psychiatric Hospital. In response to neighbours' requests, the Department of Public Works under the supervision of provincial architect Kivas Tully made improvements to the pumphouse grounds by fencing the premises and building the engineer's residence. At the same time a new fire hall at the hospital was erected and the contract for all the work was awarded to J. & E. Dickenson of Hamilton. 188 Markland Street is historically significant as the only one of these three buildings to have survived. Architecturally, the house is a noteworthy example of the Second Empire style, characterized by the slate mansard roof, the dormers, bay window and arched doorway.

Important to the conservation of 188 Markland Street is the preservation of the original features on the front and east facades.
