SCHEDULE "B"

To By-law No. L.S.P.-3240-547

Historical Reasons

314 Grosvenor Street was the home of Dr. Hardy Geddes, a London physician and for whom the Hardy Geddes Home for Boys is named. His daughter Nancy Geddes Poole has been the director of the London Regional Art and Historical Museums for many years.

Architectural Reasons

Built in 1909, this two storey house Edwardian house has references to Arts and Crafts architecture of the turn of the century. The design reflects the work of British architects such as James McLaren, William Lethaby, and C.F.A. Voysey who borrowed from English vernacular tradition. The use of stucco, red brick, and rounded front bay window encompassing five windows reflect this influence. The transoms of most the windows in the house have frosted and patterned clear glass leaded windows. The house has rusticated concrete block foundation and the original roof material was wood shingles.
