SCHEDULE A to BY-LAW 150-94

Part of the east half of Lot 13, Concession 5, East of Hurontario Street, City of Brampton, Regional Municipality of Peel designated as Part 1 on Reference Plan 43R-12454 formerly Township of Chinguacousy, County of Peel.

SCHEDULE B to BY-LAW 150-94REASONS FOR PROPOSED DESIGNATION OF THE ELLIOTT HOMESTEADHISTORY:

The property on which the farm house stands was conveyed by deed to George Elliott in 1834. In 1876 his son, William Elliott, commissioned contractors James Voakes and William McCulla to build the present structure located at 10464 Torbram Road known as the "Elliott Homestead" or "Elliott Place".

Voakes and McCulla had been commissioned by William Elliott earlier that year to construct Harrison Methodist Church located approximately one kilometre to the south of the Elliott Homestead. (This church, known today as Har Tikvah Synagogue, is designated under Part IV of the Ontario Heritage Act By-Law #180-84.) As a result of this shared historical connection, the two buildings exhibit many similar design characteristics.

William McCulla was an active figure in public life serving as a member of Brampton Council, Mayor of Brampton, Warden of the County of Peel and as a Federal Member of Parliament for Peel. Until 1994, four generations of the Elliott family lived in the farm house making it one of the longest family occupancies in Peel.

ARCHITECTURE:

10464 Torbram Road is an excellent example of a farm house built in the Gothic Revival Style. Some of the features of this style which are evident on the building include pointed arched windows, verge board decorated in curvilinear patterns, a bay window and an elaborately ornamented veranda. The house also contains numerous vernacular influences including the form and layout of the house and the use of local red brick enhanced by the presence of patterns of buff coloured brick which are sheered and raised at the roof line, the ground level and the corners of the building.

The house, built on a foundation of local shale, is rectangular in plan and has two wings to the rear which appear in the 1877 Historical Atlas of Peel County. It is one and one half stories in height, with a partial basement under the main section of the house. The walls over this section of the house are of frame construction and are sheathed in a single layer brick veneer laid out in a stretcher bond pattern. The two sections to the rear are constructed of double brick in an American or common bond pattern.

A significant feature of the Elliott farm house is the presence of a date stone inscribed "Elliott Place 1876" and two distinctive types of key stones. One type of keystone is inscribed with a rose and the second type with an "E". Both symbols are believed to be emblems of the Elliott family.

The windows on the house are similar to how they appeared in the 1877 sketch. On the lower level the windows are segmental, rectangular in form with rounded heads. In the gables, the windows are finished in a Gothic arch. The wider windows are 2/2 while the narrower windows are 1/1. All of the windows are double hung with sills of sandstone and lintels of buff coloured brick. Wooden shutters compliment some of the windows.

Immediately to the rear of the Elliott farm house is a one storey frame smoke house/wash house clad in board and batten which was built circa 1876. An important feature of the structure is a bell tower on the roof.

The external appearance of "Elliott Place" has been largely unaltered since it was built in 1876. It remains one of the finest intact examples of this type of Gothic Revival residence remaining in Brampton.

CONTEXT:

The Elliott farm house is an important reminder of the pioneer farming heritage of Chinguacousy Township. The farm house also shares an important historical connection with the former Harrison United Church located one kilometre to the south at 9893 Torbram Road.
