THE HICK'S HOUSE

The Hick's family were pioneers of Mitchell. The existing building was built on the original foundation of the 1850's building that perished by fire. This building was the centre of activity for travellers who passed through Mitchell and vicinity for many years. At times it was also the focus of urban life in Mitchell with it's dignified central porch on the street side. The building front has significant intact second empire architectural detail known only to this period of history and it is these which we wish to preserve.
