Reasons for Designation of Myrtleville, 191 Balmoral Drive

Myrtleville is unique in Brantford representing as it does, the establishment and evolution of a pioneer homestead. Settled in the early 19th Century, it has remained virtually intact to the present day. The property includes various outbuildings and the foundations of farm buildings.

The principal residential structure in the compound is a 2-storey clapboard house. Constructed in 1837, the building is truly Georgian in both its design and proportion. Featuring a traditional centre hall plan, the building has been restored and furnished with a variety of period peices. The Good Family which founded the homestead, and ultimately donated the property to Heritage Canada, has been prominent for its involvement in the political and social life of Brant County for generations.

The Trusteeship of Heritage Canada established the national significance of the Myrtleville property which is now proposed to be designated by the City of Brantford for both its historical and architectural significance.
