The Hespeler Town Hall is recommended for designation because of its architectural and historic significance. The building was constructed in 1914, at a cost of $35,000, from a design by John Evans of the architectural firm Evans and Fulford of Galt. Constructed in the Beaux Arts style, this building features columns, pilasters and pediments. This style was popular for public and commercial buildings at the turn of the last century. This building housed the offices of the Mayor and Clerk, the police department and jail, assessment and taxation offices as well as the office for the board of health and welfare. The town council chambers were also located here.

REASONS FOR DESIGNATION

The property was evaluated in terms of the criteria for designation in accordance to the Heritage Policies within the City of Cambridge Official Plan:

- a) it is a good, representative example of a method of construction now rarely used;
- b) it is a good, representative example of its architectural style or period of building;
- c) it makes an important contribution to the urban composition or streetscape of which it forms a part;
- d) it is a good representative example and illustration of the City's social, cultural, political and economic history.

Further information about this property can be found in the L.A.C.A.C. building file.
