Description of Property

4881 King Street contains a 2.5-storey residential building and is located on the north side of King Street, east of East Street and west of Bartlett Road in Beamsville, Town of Lincoln, Regional Municipality of Niagara. The property is adjacent to Great Lakes Christian College.

Historical Value

The property has historical value for its association with prominent individuals. Prior to 1886, the lands on which the property is located were acquired by John Henry Smith and his wife Rosetta. John Henry Smith is the grandson of John Smith, one of Grimsby's earliest settlers, who arrived in 1787. John Henry's wife Rosetta was also from the well-known Prudhomme family. The Smiths sold the property to Hugh Sinclair who was responsible for the construction of the house circa 1905.

Hugh Sinclair had an active interest in the public life of the town. He was one of the first directors of the Mechanics' Institute which was formed in 1884 and continued to fill the position up to December 1897. He was also elected to the Board of Education in 1886 and held office for many years. Sinclair was, for several years, village auditor and a director of the Clinton, Louth and North Grimsby Agricultural Society. He also served as a confidential secretary to Senator William Gibson, and as the Beamsville Postmaster.

Architectural Value

The dwelling has architectural value because it is a rare and notable example of a red pressed brick house; an amalgam of Queen Anne Revival and Edwardian Classicism architecture built in the early 20th century. This was a pivotal time in the economic and population growth of Beamsville, which had just become an incorporated village and was successfully re-building the commercial core after a great fire in about 1891. Successful industries included the Beamsville Pressed Brick Company and a significant carriage factory. Queen Anne style architecture represents only 4% and Edwardian Classicism 6% of all the architectural styles in the Town of Lincoln's proposed Heritage Conservation district.

The property also demonstrates or reflects the work of a builder significant to a community. The house is a fine example of red pressed bricks and rough brick voussoirs that were supplied by the Beamsville Pressed Brick Company which started in 1875.

Contextual Value

The property has contextual value as it supports the heritage character of the East End Mixed-Use Corridor area. This area generally begins east of Academy Street with modest setbacks. The area is mostly nineteenth-century buildings, physical reminders of prosperous Beamsville industries such as stonecutting, brick pressing and fruit growing and residences associated with prominent merchants.

The property is physically, functionally, and visually linked to its surroundings. The landscaping of private properties adds to the pedestrian experience while travelling along the concrete sidewalks. West of Great Lakes Christian College this area includes residential properties with shallow front yards and residential foundation plantings. Great Lakes Christian College consists of residential and institutional buildings with broad lawns and major setbacks. Bartlett Creek runs north-south through this area. East of the watercourse, the area is characterized by a more open streetscape consisting of larger residential properties and greater setbacks on the south side of King Street with commercial and industrial uses on the north side.
