SCHEDULE "B"

Reasons for the designation of the property at No. 90 Yonge Street (The Robert Fairweather Building)

The property at No. 90 Yonge Street is designated on architectural grounds. Robert Fairweather built this building in 1918-1919, following the designs of the architect Charles S. Cobb, to house his Fashionable Ladies Fine Furs and Specialty Shop. Executed in smooth faced buff Indiana limestone, the façade has fine ornamentation including scrolled keystones, cartouches and cable moulding, and a balanced fenestration with small-paned metal frames. The semi-circular arched second floor windows have elegant cast bronze balcony balustrades. The original recessed shopfront entrances retain the bronze details at base, mullion and head. This building is a distinctive example of the restrained and well detailed European Classicism which had an important influence on Canadian architecture throughout the early decades of this century and of which Cobb was a strong proponent. It is also representative of the fine shopping establishments situated along Yonge near Queen Street during the first half of this century.
