SCHEDULE "B"

Reasons for the designation of the property at No. 2398 Yonge Street (Police Station No. 12 - Now known as Division 53)

The property at No. 2398 Yonge Street, (Police Station #12, now known as Division 53) is designated on architectural grounds. J.J. Woolnough, City Architect, designed this prominent North Toronto landmark which was built in 1931-32. A unique feature of the building is its exterior cladding comprised of a smooth-faced cut stone lower storey contrasted with buff brick cladding on the upper storey. Stone banding courses exist as sills, lintels and cornices. Copper flashing finishes off the cornice. The double-hung windows, with unusual paning are regularly placed and noticeably recessed. The most prominent feature of the building is the projecting stepped frontispiece of smooth cut stone decorated in stylized low relief ornament and surmounted by a flagpole. The classically inspired centre window is finely detailed. The entrance leading to the interior public spaces is recessed with stylized pilasters, unique light fixtures and a panelled oak door with transom light. Police Station #12 is a prominently located example of civic architecture that is an integral part of a group of three important public buildings which are a focal point in the North Toronto community.
