SCHEDULE "A"

Royal Ontario Museum
100 Queen's Park

The property at 100 Queen's Park is recommended for designation for its cultural heritage value or interest. Located in landscaped open space on the southwest corner of Queen's Park and Bloor Street West, the Royal Ontario Museum was founded in 1912 and evolved from a facility specializing in natural history and human civilization to the largest museum in the British Commonwealth outside of London, England. The notable architectural firm of Darling and Pearson designed the original building (West Wing, 1914), with architects Chapman and Oxley designing the Centre Block and East Wing (1933) and the Office Building at the south end of the West Wing (1933 and 1937).

The Royal Ontario Museum complex displays elements derived from historical architecture, including the Romanesque Revival. The heritage attributes of the West Wing are the three-storey rectangular plan above a stone base, the brick cladding with brick, stone and terra cotta trim, the flat roof with a parapet, the round-arched door and window openings, the Roman stone balconies, and the three-storey bay windows. On the East Wing, the heritage attributes are the three-storey rectangular plan with a centre block, wings and end pavilions, the brick cladding on the west wall, the limestone cladding and trim on the other elevations, the copper-clad pitched roof, the flat-headed and round-arched door and window openings, the east frontispiece with the entrance and elaborate sculptural program and, on the interior, the Rotunda and main staircase. The three-storey Centre Block and the four-storey Office Building have brick facing and regular fenestration.

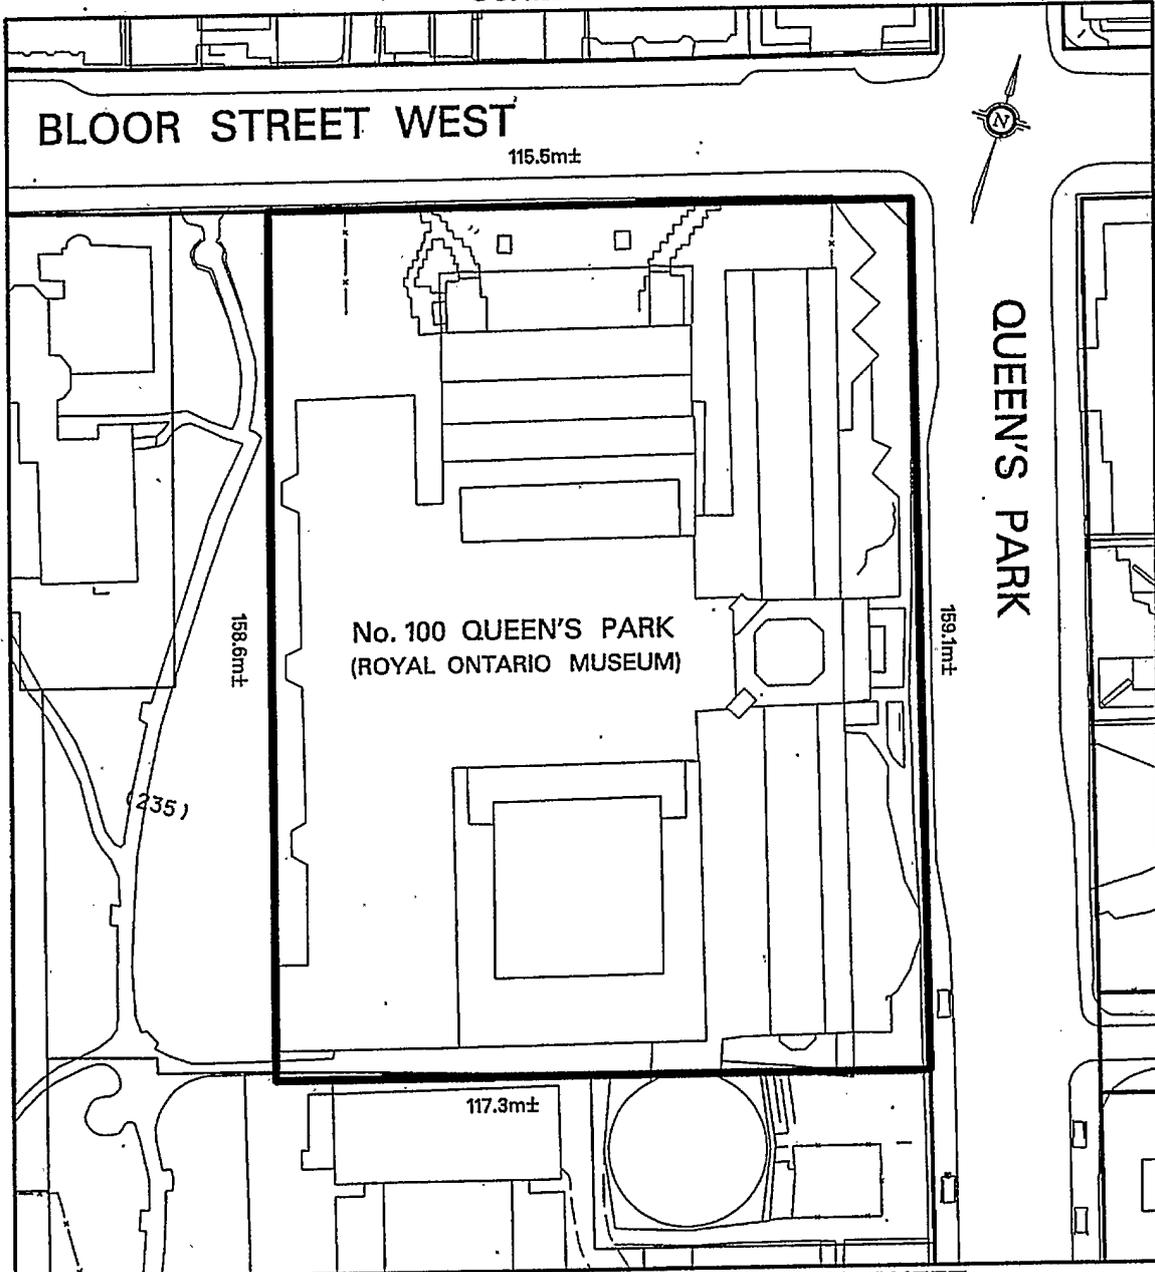

The Royal Ontario Museum is architecturally and historically significant as a cultural institution of international renown that is a landmark in the City of Toronto.

SCHEDULE "B"
