This gracious ten room residence, which was constructed in 1886 by Mr. John Ezzard, is true to Victorian architectural style, as it features a multitude of detail which include buff soldier-coursing around the windows and corners. The interior is distinctive with a spectacular English bay arch in the dining room, high ceilings, complete with ornate plaster medallions and deep cornice work, four-pane lead glass windows and colonial style panel doors. Original pine floors are found throughout the house, as are generous 12-inch mouldings.
