H. Hamilton Survey (unregistered).

SCHEDULE "B"

TO

BY-LAW NO. 79-222

This main Hamilton building of the Bank of Montreal, in a monumental and magnificent classical mode, was designed by the Montreal architect Kenneth G. Rea, FRIBA; construction began in 1928 through the Hamilton firm of Pigott Construction. The main facade on James Street is of Queenston dolomite set on a Stansead granite base. The central motif of this facade is composed of four graceful Corinthian columns supporting a pediment incorporating the bank's coat of arms. The three flanking bays are fenestrated with soaring windows separated by Corinthian-headed pilasters. This flanking design and its materials is carried to the north and south facades. The rear elevation is unfinished.

The interior is dominated by the expansive volume of the 35 foot high banking hall. It is classically-decorated with 28 foot Ionic columns in solid red Levanto marble, pilasters against a finely-chiselled Tennessee marble wall and a ceiling spanned by coffered ornamented girders in polychrome.

The September, 1929, issue of the trade magazine Construction, in a major spread on this "magnificent new building...on this historic site", calls it "a splendid example of the best type of Bank Architecture...one of the finest bank premises in Canada..." The article particularly notes the "rich materials and some from great distances", the stone capitals of the exterior columns, the pediment and the pilaster heads, all hand executed on the job, "an example of the stone carver's art of particular interest in the present period of much cast stone detail", and notes with pleasure the choice of a Canadian contractor. The closing remarks of the article are as applicable today as in 1929;

"Altogether this elegant and commodious building is well fitted to render efficient banking service for many years to come and is one of which the Bank of Montreal and the City of Hamilton may justly be proud."

This structure is a critical component of a set of classical buildings clustered around the Main and James intersection and should be seen, therefore, not only as a monument complete in itself, but also as an integral part of this special "financial district" of downtown Hamilton.
