332 St. George Street (east side between Cromwell and Cheapside Streets)

Historical Reasons

City Directory records indicate that this property was originally occupied from its construction in 1896 to the mid 1940's by William McLoud who was High Constable for the County of Middlesex.

Architectural Reasons

This yellow brick Queen Anne style house at 332 St. George Street was built in 1896. Exterior architectural features of note include a hip roof with front and side gables which contain decorative bargeboards, pediments and brackets, and a projecting bay window on the north side of the building. There is also attractive beading detail at the base of the front gable, and voussoirs above all windows. The front doors have decorative sidelights and a multiple light transom. There is also a multiple light transom over the large front window.

Interior features of note include the double parlour and living room which have eleven and a half foot ceilings, high baseboards and white oak hardwood floors. The fireplace located in the living room appears to have been a later addition.

Contextual Reasons

This property is located in an area which has a high concentration of heritage buildings. The varied housing styles exemplifies the income mix and occupations of individuals in this neighbourhood.
