REASONS FOR DESIGNATION

Description of property – 5 Father David Bauer, Waterloo

5 Father David Bauer Drive (Waterloo Condo Corporation 335) is located south of Father David Bauer Drive and west of 3 Father David Bauer Drive and Caroline Street South. The property contains a multi-story, buff brick building that served as a bonded warehouse to house barrels of ageing spirits for the Seagram Distillery.

Statement of Cultural Heritage Value or Interest

Built ca. 1892, the former barrel warehouse contains design value pertaining to its representative late 19th century monumental industrial architecture, evident in its neoclassical form, low pitched pediment, buff brick, and distinctive fenestration. The original east and west facing facades are also unique in terms of their relatively large scale. Reconstructed using the original brick, the north and south façades play a supporting role in maintaining the form and mass of the building.

The building has direct association with historic personalities and vital industrial developments that are significant to the community. Seagram's Distillery was founded by members of one of Waterloo's pioneering families. The Seagrams played important roles in the history of Waterloo, as industrialists, politicians and philanthropists. The 19th century patriarch, Joseph E. Seagram, moved from Hespeler (Cambridge) to Waterloo to manage the business interests of William Hespeler, his wife's uncle. The Granite Mills and Waterloo Distillery, as it was known then, had been founded in 1857. The distilling business along with other concerns such as milling and dry goods was owned by William Hespeler, George Randall, and William Roos. In 1883, Seagram purchased the businesses from the original owners, disposed of the other parts and renamed the successful spirit producing works, "J. E. Seagram's Distillery." From 1857 to 1992 the distillery operated continuously, in the heart of Waterloo. As one of the community's leading industries, the Seagram complex provided regular employment to as many as 250 local citizens. Though the family is no longer in the alcohol distilling business, the Seagram name is known around the world.

The building is a landmark and an icon in the City of Waterloo appearing on tourist promotion brochures, letterhead, postcards and web sites. It is the largest of the three remaining Seagram barrel warehouses that together form a character-defining landscape in the Uptown. It is historically and visually linked to its smaller sister building, 3 Father David Bauer Drive, as well as a number of other extant Seagram distillery buildings within the former Seagram industrial lands. As well, it serves as a visual link to the proud tradition of the City and to a time when functional buildings were also statements of cultural sophistication with their classical architectural reference.

Description of Heritage Attributes

Key heritage attributes that embody the property's design, historical and contextual values include:

- The mass and outline of the building
- The setback, location and orientation of the building, including proximity to 3 Father David Bauer Dr.
- The soft, varied-coloured and mottled buff brick on all façades
- The east and west façades including:
  - pediments underlined by brick dentils
  - brick pilasters
  - tiers of small windows topped by segmented brick arches
  - appearance of the former window shutters
- Views of the east façade from Caroline Street, as depicted in Schedule "D"

Key attributes do not include the 3 single storey garages to the south west of the former barrel warehouse.
