On the architectural grounds that it is a well preserved example of an Ontario Regency Style Cottage having many of its fine original architectural features in fine condition. Historically the house was built Circa 1848 for Lt. Colonel George K. Chisholm who later became the Town's Mayor. In later years the house was owned by Richard S. Wood, founder of the "Oakville Oil Refinery". In 1903, the house was sold to Captain Maurice Fitzgerald, Captain of one of the last sailing schooners on the Great Lakes.
