Reasons for Designation

The Bank of Ottawa building is recommended for designation for architectural reasons. Constructed in 1913, this charming two storey structure is built in a Medieval style unique in the Town of Cobalt. The Medieval motif is carried out on the pressed brick facade with the use of a concrete "dressed stone" base, quoined "stone" edging around the windows and door, a ground floor window under a segmentally arched "stone" heading, a crenellated drip stone and side scrolled transom light over the door, a centred second floor quintuple window topped with a continuous "stone" heading band, and a bracketed "dressed stone" cornice. This building presents a unique architectural facet of the first decade of the Town of Cobalt.
