438 Maude Street retains all of its upper "gingerbread" detailing, the front porch posts and upper "gingerbread" are also original. The house was covered with siding in 1998; however, the original detailing above the windows is maintained.

The northside "bump out" window is original, even to the exterior storms, with the v-joint, tongue and groove siding. The exterior ornate trim as well as the wide interior trim are all present.

The interior woodwork is almost completely original including the wide trim around the windows and doors. The three ceiling medallions -- front foyer, front parlour and middle parlour -- are all very ornate and original to the home.

The original wainscoting the middle parlour extends out into the foyer and up the stairs, which are also original and in wonderful condition. The stairs are very well constructed with a small ornamental details from the outside "gingerbread" on the three lower steps. The stairs are 42¼ inches wide.
