Reasons for Designation

HISTORIC

This house was built around 1861 by Robert Spence. Other noted owners of the house were William Thompson, a butcher in a store in the market block, and Sidney Correll, a member of Whitby Town Council from 1958 to 1959.

ARCHITECTURAL

The Robert Spence House is a one-storey and a half vernacular frame building with characteristics of the Classical Revival style. Specific features of interest include the simple boxed eaves, return detailing on each gable end and the original window sash with their 6/6 lights.
