Statement of Cultural Heritage Value or Interest

The Sylvester Tomlinson house constructed circa 1853 has cultural heritage value for its association with the Tomlinson Family. Sylvester Tomlinson's father Joseph was among the earliest settlers of Markham and was listed in William Berczy's Census of 1803. Joseph Tomlinson's last marriage produced 11 children including Sylvester's brother Alfred, who was credited with constructing a dam on the Rouge River that led to the establishment of a sawmill, a woollen mill, and a shoddy mill. These mills formed the economic nucleus of Box Grove which was originally named Sparta.

The name was changed from Sparta to Box Grove by Sylvester's father Joseph when he applied for a post office in 1867 and found out that another community named Sparta already existed. It is thought that Joseph Tomlinson gave the community the name "Box Grove" due to the large number of boxwood trees in the vicinity or a historic business which used to manufacture wooden crates. The Sylvester Tomlinson house is believed to be the only remaining house with links to this prominent local family.

Description of Heritage Attributes

Key exterior attributes that reflect the early construction date and classical revival style of the of the Sylvester Tomlinson house are:

- the house's simple rectangular form and roofline;
- the symmetrical placement of windows and doors;
- the trim, transom window, and classical entablature associated with the entrance door;
- the moderately pitched gable roof;
- the 3 bay principal façade;
- the original wooden clapboard siding concealed beneath the modern vinyl siding.
