Description of Property

93 Salisbury Avenue is a three storey Tudor Revival residence located in the area referred to as Dickson Hill.

Statement of Cultural Heritage Value or Interest

The cultural heritage significance of 93 Salisbury Avenue is in the fact that it is one of the best examples of the Tudor Revival Style in the Dickson Hill area. True to the Tudor Revival style, it features a steeply pitched roof, half-timbering with stucco infilling, tall narrow windows, many in multiple groups and with multi-pane glazing and massive chimneys.

The cultural heritage significance of this property is also in its association with William Chamberlain, an importer of fine woods and R.A. Briscoe, a prominent local businessperson, F.W. Landreth, President of Dom Tack, and R.M. Robertson, President of Babcock and Wilcox. These businesses were important to the economic development of Cambridge.

Unless otherwise indicated, the reason for designation apply generally to all exterior elevations, facades, roof and roof trim, all doors, windows and other structural openings and associated trim, all architectural detailing, construction materials of wood, stone, brick and glazing and related building techniques.

To ensure the cultural heritage value of this property is conserved, certain heritage attributes which contribute to its value have been specifically identified and include:

Description of Heritage Attributes

Key exterior attributes that embody the heritage value of this property include:

- The large even course limestone foundation and stone elements found elsewhere on the residence;
- The red brick with mortar to match;
- Its location on a large corner lot;
- The porte cochere;
- All window and door openings; and
- The enclosed sunroom.
