Schedule "B"
Reasons for Designation

The reasons for designation are as follows:

Description

The property at 240 Garafraxa Street North is worthy of designation under Part IV, Section 29 of the Ontario Heritage Act for its cultural heritage value, and meets the criteria for municipal designation prescribed by the Province of Ontario under the three categories of design, association and contextual values. Located on the west side of Garafraxa Street North, north of George Street West immediately north of the Knox United Church in the community of Durham, the Durham Carnegie Free Library, built 1911 to 1912, is a 1 storey institutional building constructed as an area library and meeting room.

Statement of Cultural Heritage Value

The Durham Carnegie Free Library is a well preserved, representative example of a stone and brick, Beaux-Arts Classical Revival style, institutional building in the community of Durham. It was constructed for the municipality of the Town of Durham in response to a $8,000 grant from the Carnegie Foundation for the construction of a free, public library. The Foundation, founded in 1905, is a philanthropic organization established by the American industrialist, Andrew Carnegie, which, in the early twentieth century, provided grants to municipalities in the English speaking world for the construction of free public libraries to further Carnegie's belief of a society governed by meritocracy through self-education. The Building was designed by the Guelph Architect William Austin Mahoney (1871 – 1952). It was constructed by Hugh McDonald (masonry) and George Kress (carpentry) on land that had been donated to the Town by a mayor, David Jackson Jr. The Library, in its original location facing east, retains the architectural features required by the Foundation and in particular, James Bertram, Carnegie's secretary. The Library, located immediately north of the Knox United (originally Presbyterian) Church, contributes to, and has a strong visual presence on, the streetscape of this predominantly residential area just north of the commercial core of Durham. The Building was used as the community library from its opening until 2017.

Description of Heritage Attributes To Be Protected

The heritage attributes of the property 240 Garafraxa Street North are:

- On the Exterior:
- The 1-storey institutional building on a raised basement
- The scale, form, height and massing of this square building on a rectangular-shaped lot
- The broken coursed, cut limestone basement and the red brick clad first floor; the latter with banding on the principal (east) elevation
- The low pitched, black asphalt shingled, hip roof with its projecting, plain wood clad eaves on the main building on the portico
- The symmetrical arrangement of the principal (east) elevation with the central entrance, positioned mid-way between the basement and the first floor, flanked on either side by pairs of window openings on the first floor and the basement
- The central portico on the principal (east) elevation, which shelters the front entrance, with arched openings with stepped concrete voussoirs on the three sides, ionic columns and pilasters on red brick piers supporting the portico and key-stone cartouche in the east opening
- The straight staircase and plain concrete balustrade leading to the portico and the front entrance
- The first floor large rectangular window openings with one over one wooden sash and transom above and concrete lug sills on all elevations
- The concrete lintels over all window openings except those on the first floor of the principal elevation where there are large stepped voussoirs over the semi-circular window openings
- The shorter window openings on the basement with one over one wood sash
- The wide front entrance opening with its semi-circular head, door leafed door and semi-circular transom

On the Interior on the first floor:

- The high ceilings
- On all windows - wood casings and sills
- Around all door openings - wood casings
- The wood framed, glass paneled swinging doors from the vestibule to the first floor
- All baseboards and chair rails
- The pair of tapered, square, paneled wood columns immediately west of the entrance vestibule
- The moulded wood casing at the base of the arched and straight openings, that latter supported by the pair of square columns,
- The paneled doors to the office and to the basement staircase

On the interior in the basement:

- The staircase leading from the first floor to the basement, including newel posts, balusters, hand rail, string course, treads and risers
- The door and wall of the basement entrance vestibule
- On all remaining windows – wood casings and sills

Contextual Value

The property at 240 Garafraxa Street North is located on the west side of Garafraxa Street North between Chester and George Streets West in a predominantly residential area. The Durham Carnegie Free Library is immediately north of the Knox United Church. Although both the Church and the Library have landscaped front yards, the Church is setback further from the street than the Library. Immediately north of the Library there is a large, open parking area. As a result of the position of the Library relative to the Church and the parking area, the Library has visual prominence whether viewed from the north or the south. Although the Library, because of its height, roof and mass has a domestics scale, the portico and large window voussoirs provide further visual prominence to the Library
