NOTICE OF INTENTION TO DESIGNATE REASONS FOR DESIGNATION

The exterior of this property is recommended for conservation as property having architectural and historical value or interest by the Local Architectural Conservation Advisory Committee of the City of Burlington and in the book entitled, "Head of the Lake" written by Dr. C.M. Johnston.

Built in Burlington in 1830-1850, the house is styled in the Georgian tradition. The house is of field stone, with the surface smoothed over to give the building a mortar-like effect. The two-storey rectangular plan has a Classical Revival six-panelled doorway, flanked on either side by sidelight transom and windows of evenly spaced proportions. A well-known architect, Arthur Wallace of Waterdown, described it as a 'Military type officer's quarters'. Two large stone chimneys, typical of the 1820-1830's rise at either end of the building.

After the war of 1812, Joseph Ireland, Overseer of Highways, was given a grant of land in East Flamborough. In 1820 he purchased the above property from Daniel O'Rielly who had been given the land by the Crown in 1808.

In 1823, Joseph married, and his son John, grandson, George and great granddaughter, Marie, the present owner, were born in this house.
