IN THE MATTER OF THE ONTARIO HERITAGE ACT

Notice of Intention to Designate

The City of Ottawa on June 26, 2019 established its intention to designate 1820 St. Joseph Boulevard under Part IV of the Ontario Heritage Act for its cultural heritage value.

Description of Property

The building at 1820 St. Joseph Boulevard is a one-and-a-half-storey stone building constructed c.1900 as a storehouse and flour mill for the Youville Farm. It is located on the south side of St. Joseph Boulevard in the east Ottawa community of Orléans.

Statement of Cultural Heritage Value or Interest

The building at 1820 St. Joseph Boulevard has design value as a good example of a stone structure built in a vernacular style of architecture that was used in Quebec from 1880-1920, which is influenced by the Second Empire Style. The property displays architectural integrity and craftsmanship in its stonework as demonstrated in the quoins and voussoirs.

The building at 1820 St. Joseph Boulevard has historical value for its association with the Sisters of Charity, also known as the Grey Nuns. The Order of the Grey Nuns was originally based in Montreal and was founded by Marguerite d'Youville in 1737, to help those in need of medical or social services. Several decades after the order was established, Elisabeth Bruyère was asked to set up a community of the Sisters of Charity in Bytown. In 1885, the Grey Nuns purchased 500 acres of farmland west of the core of the old village of Orléans, which was owned by the Besserer family and stretched to the river, to establish a farm and supply fresh produce to the Mother House in Bytown. The building at 1820 St. Joseph Boulevard was constructed as a storehouse and flour mill for the Grey Nuns Youville Farm. It is a physical representation of the Youville Farm and the historic rural character of Orléans.

The building at 1820 St. Joseph Boulevard has contextual value as one of two stone buildings on St. Joseph Boulevard associated with the former Youville Farm. The other building is the farmhouse across the street at 1811 St. Joseph Boulevard. The buildings are visually and historically related, and together serve as a physical representation of the Grey Nuns and the Youville Farm. The building also has contextual value as a landmark and as one of the few remaining buildings that express the former agricultural character of Orléans.

Heritage Attributes

Key attributes that embody the heritage value of the building at 1820 St. Joseph Boulevard include:

- Rough-cut limestone construction laid in random courses
- One-and-one-half-story form and massing
- Combination mansard/hip metal roof with dormer windows
- Window openings with stone voussoirs and stone sills
- Simple one over one sash windows
- Stone quoins
- Stone chimney on the west side of the building

- Centrally located front door with sidelights and transom
- Its location on St. Joseph Boulevard within close proximity to the Youville Farmhouse at 1811 St. Joseph Boulevard, to which it was an accessory building

The interior of the building is excluded from the designation.
