REASON FOR DESIGNATION

Architectural Design or Physical Value:

The house is a unique representation of the Queen Anne Revival style of architecture and it is rare to find one in such well-maintained condition. The residence has many of the original features that were established when the house was built in 1871. The residence maintains the tall chimneys and turreted tower that were part of the original structure. A pillared verandah was a later addition to the front and east sides of the house but is authentically aligned with the Queen Anne Revival style of the residence. All of the home's features reflect the Queen Anne Revival style of architecture and contribute to the physical value of the building.

ATTRIBUTES TO BE CONSERVED:

- The two storey bay frontispiece located on the south west side of the dwelling
- The turreted tower
- The wrap around verandah with supporting by pairs Romanesque columns in a style reflective of the Queen Anne Revival
- The foundation of the home containing ashlar stone
- Two rectangular bricked chimneys
- The stained glass arched window in the bay and the stained glass transom in the side bay windows
- The stone archway leading to the front door
- Original windows including double-hung 4 by 4 windows on both the first and second storeys with decorative stained glass transoms on the second storey and window shutters on both storeys
- The transom window over the front door
