SCHEDULE "A"

630 Bayshore Boulevard (Lot 55, Plan 529)

The "Big House" was the first permanent home built in the Brighton Beach Survey, developed by W. D. Flatt as a summer vacation area. Each of the homes in the area jointly owns an interest in the nearby beach front. The home was built in 1920 for Joseph and Edith Hunter by Alexander Milne. Located at the fork in the road entering the survey the home has become the anchor of the neighbourhood.

Although many alterations have changed the one and a-half storey, two bay structure home, the original charm of its craftsman style beginnings, remain. A panel front door, a stained glass window, the brick chimney on the left side of the home, original windows with concrete sills, voussoir brick arch above and wood trim, and centre front gable remain. The original cedar roof and craftsman style detailed front porch with round columns have been replaced with asphalt roof and pressure treated lumber, respectively.

479 Burlington Avenue (Part Lots 42 and 43, Plan 74)

Built circa 1914 by Robert John Allen, this craftsman style bungalow makes a strong contribution to the heritage of both Burlington Avenue and Ontario Street. The recent renovation of the house and the landscaping of the garden by Hager Creek both demonstrate how a property's heritage value may be enhanced by attention to historic materials and craftsmanship. Details such as rug brick, cedar shingles, exposed raftertails under the eaves, and replicated craftsman style windows restore the original character of the house.

526 Burlington Avenue (Part Lots 63 and 64, Plan 117)

Built circa 1913 by Charles Klainka, who had been a foreman at Nicholson's Planing Mills, this frame house clad in cedar shingles and cross-cut clapboard siding is a good example of a modest craftsman style bungalow. Its architectural design, with its high-pitched gable roof and front veranda, complements that of its neighbour at 534 Burlington Avenue, a large stone craftsman style villa built three years earlier, and contributes to the heritage character of the Edwardian and Victorian streetscape of Burlington Avenue.
