The Farmhouse is a two-storey structure with stone foundation, red brick cladding, hipped roof with asphalt shingles, and contains a single-storey frame tail section with stone foundation at the rear. The Farmhouse was constructed in 1898, according to the date stone set into the front façade.

Statement of Cultural Heritage Value or Interest

Design and Physical Value

The house demonstrates design/physical value as a representative example of a Queen Anne Revival dwelling. The subdued Queen Anne style is reflected in the two-storey, irregular plan of the building with hipped roof, bay window projection on the south elevation, decorative terra-cotta brick inset on the south elevation, and rectangular window openings with rusticated stone sills and lintels. A two-storey bay projection on the south elevation, inset wooden porch with decorative wooden trim is located on the south elevation, between the main brick house and frame tail. Historically, the house had additional Queen Anne decorative elements, including a full-width wooden porch with elaborate spindle work and paired brackets at the eaves of the second storey.

Historical and Associative Value

The house demonstrates historical value due to its associations with the Biggar Family. The Biggar family was an early settler family in Trafalgar Township, purchasing the property in 1854 and became a prominent farming family on the subject property. One member of the family, Michael Biggar, served as Deputy Reeve of Halton County in 1890-91. Descendants of the Biggar family, Albert and Harriet, constructed the existing dwelling in 1898 and named the farm "Glenclare Farm". Members of the Biggar family owned Glenclare Farmhouse and farmed the Glenclare Farm until 1985.

Description of Heritage Attributes:
