NOTICE OF INTENTION TO DESIGNATE

TAKE NOTICE that the Council of the Corporation of the City of Cambridge intends to designate the following property for its cultural heritage value or interest under the Ontario Heritage Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter O.18, Part IV, Section 29.

156 ARGYLE STREET NORTH (“PRESTON CARNEGIE LIBRARY”)

Description of Historic Place

The property known municipally as 156 Argyle Street North is located at the intersection of Duke Street and Argyle Street North, within downtown Preston. The property contains a two-and-a-half storey red brick structure purpose-built as a public library with funds donated from the Carnegie Foundation in 1909. The property's heritage designation is reserved to the structure and does not extend to any landscape features.

Statement of Cultural Heritage Value or Interest

The former Preston Carnegie Library exhibits physical/design value, historical/associative value, and contextual value. The property contains a two-and-a-half storey Beaux-Arts civic building designed in 1909 by William Edward Binning (1851-1928) and with funds donated by philanthropist Andrew Carnegie (1835-1919).

Built in the Beaux-Arts Classical style, the building features a large projecting frontispiece, a monumental semi-elliptical pediment with inset bas-relief decorative designs, concrete pilasters with Ionic capitals, decorative wall sconce lights, stained glass, and eyebrow windows permitting sunlight into the attic storey.

The former Preston Carnegie Library is the successor of the first library in Preston created by local notary Otto Julius Klotz (1852-1923) in 1871 within the Mechanics' Institute. Originally located in the Fireman's Hall on King Street it was moved to the local Oddfellow's Hall in 1887 and by 1895 it was renamed as the Preston Public Library. On February 13, 1909, a $12,000 award was received from the Carnegie Foundation. Binning was commissioned to design the new library and it was opened in 1910.
