Statement of Reasons for Designation

Design and Physical Value

13-19 Colborne Street has design and physical value as a representative example of Italianate commercial architecture and the largest extant nineteenth century commercial block in the community. The building, which was constructed in 1886 as a replacement for an older commercial block, demonstrates the key features of this architectural style which was the most popular architecture style for commercial construction in Ontario in the second half of the nineteenth century. It is representative of the execution of this style in Fenelon Falls between about 1870 and 1890 when it was at its height of popularity and the commercial core of the village was developing rapidly from its pioneer beginnings to an established Victorian community.

Historical and Associative Attributes

13-19 Colborne Street, also known as the McArthur Block, has historical and associative value in its historic relationship to the development of downtown Fenelon Falls throughout the 1870s and 1880s. Throughout this period, the community underwent a period of rapidly increasing prosperity that attracted new businesses, residents and investment into the community. This property is a result of that period of prosperity and yields information regarding Fenelon Falls' economic growth near the end of the nineteenth century. Similarly, the property also has direct associations with prominent local businessman and politician, Joseph McArthur, the original owner of the building. Throughout the second half of the nineteenth century, McArthur was a major player in the economic and political development of Fenelon Falls and is an important individual in the nineteenth century history of the community.

Contextual Value

13-19 Colborne Street has contextual value as a contributing feature to the historic commercial streetscape of downtown Fenelon Falls. The property, which is historically, visually and historically linked to its surroundings as part of the continuous commercial streetwall along the west side of Colborne Street, maintains and supports the historic commercial character of the village's downtown area which is characterized by its collection of Italianate commercial architecture dating primarily from the 1870s and 1880s. The downtown area includes a variety of late nineteenth century Italianate property executed in a similar style, size and massing to the subject property which, taken together, form a cohesive downtown landscape of which 13-19 Colborne Street is a contributing feature.
