The tree referred to as the Grand Oak located in the Sculpture Garden, 53 Grand Avenue South was designated because of its cultural heritage significance.

Description of Property

The Grand Oak Tree is located in the Sculpture Garden, 53 Grand Avenue South and part of the open space between Grand Avenue and the Grand River. The Grand Oak is a key and focal feature in the Sculpture Garden.

Statement of Cultural Heritage Value or Interest

The Grand Oak Tree is recommended for designation because of its cultural heritage significance. The Grand Oak is a White Oak – Quercus alba. It is the largest oak in the Galt downtown river core. The Grand Oak is believed to be about 130 years old having surviving seasonal flooding. In 1976, to combat flooding, a dike was installed along the river and the land in proximity to the tree was built up five feet. The tree was protected during the construction of the dike and a tree well surrounds the tree trunk and continues to protect its roots. The tree provides shade in the summer to people using the Sculpture Garden. The Grand Oak is considered to be a landmark tree and an important feature along the banks of the Grand River, a designated Canadian Heritage River.

Description of Heritage Attributes

The key attributes that embody the cultural heritage value of the Grand Oak include:

- placement in a public open space;
- the tree is believed, at the time of passing this by-law, to be 130 years old;
- it is considered a landmark in the community;
