Introduction and Description of Property

The Robert Rose Farmstead, located at 3448 Creekford Road, is situated on the north side of the road, just east of Westbrook Road, in the former Township of Kingston, now the City of Kingston. The property contains a one-and-a-half storey Ontario vernacular farmhouse constructed between 1852 and 1860 and gambrel roof barn with a tall limestone foundation.

Statement of Cultural Heritage Value/Statement of Significance*Physical/Design Value*

The Robert Rose Farmstead has physical/design value as a good example of mid-19th century one-and-a-half storey Ontario vernacular stone house and farmstead. It is constructed of pitch-faced limestone laid in uniform courses. The house has a medium-pitched gable roof with deep eaves and eave returns. Characteristic of the Ontario cottage/vernacular style, the Rose Farmstead house has a symmetrical front façade featuring a medium-pitch gable with decorative bargeboard and a central window opening with a stone sill. The central entranceway has half sidelights protected by a low-pitched gable roof with decorative brackets. The entranceway is flanked by tall rectangular window openings with limestone voussoirs and stone sills. The east and west elevation are two-bay with four window openings featuring limestone voussoirs and stone sills. The west elevation also has a central limestone chimney with projecting breast the penetrates the roof at the peak, which is typical of the Ontario vernacular style. The house has a stone addition to the rear (north side) that has an arched carriageway on the west elevation with limestone voussoirs. It also displays a rectangular window opening with limestone voussoirs and stone sill. To the rear of the house is a wooden gambrel-roof barn with a tall pitch-faced limestone foundation with various window openings that appears to have been built at the same time as the Rose house, creating a farmstead.

Historical/Associative Value

The Robert Rose Farmstead has historical/associative value through its association with the Rose family, a local farming family in the Westbrook area. Robert Rose owned the property as early as 1851, at which time he is noted as a 45-year-old yeoman who lived with his wife Diana and their nine children in a one storey log home. By 1861, the house on the property is described as stone; and it remained in the Rose family until at least 1878.

Contextual Value

The Robert Rose Farmstead has contextual value as it contributes to and helps to maintain and support the heritage and rural character of Creekford Road.
