Lisa Lyons, Town Clerk

Schedule “A” to By-law 2025-35

Statement of Significance Reason for Designation

Ingham Sharpe House
457 D’Arcy Street
Newmarket, ON
L3Y 1M9

Reason for Designation

The property at 457 D’Arcy Street, also known as the Ingham Sharpe House, is worthy of designation under Part IV, Section 29 of the Ontario Heritage Act, 1990 for its cultural heritage value or interest, and meets Ontario Regulation 9/06, for design/physical value, historical/associative value and contextual value.

Description of Property

457 D’Arcy Street is located on the north side of D’Arcy Street in the Town of Newmarket. The two-storey Neoclassical building was constructed circa 1865.

Statement of Cultural Heritage Value or Interest/Statement of Significance

Physical/Design Value

457 D’Arcy Street is a representative example of a residence built in a Neoclassical architectural style. The box like three-bay, two-storey brick building with rear wing, follows an L-shaped plan with symmetrical façade, and has a side gable roof with central gable peak, all of which are representative of Neoclassical architecture. The rhythmically and symmetrically placed rectangular windows topped with flat arch brick voussoirs, dressed stone sills and the centrally placed front entrance topped with rectangular transom and flanked by sidelights are also features associated with the Neoclassical architectural style.

Historical/Associative Value

457 D’Arcy Street is directly associated with the historic Village of Newmarket. The lots lines, layout, and built form of the historic Village of Newmarket was well established in the mid-19th century as shown in the commercial core found along Main Street and the large presence of residences located along several side streets. The development of commercial and residential buildings in the mid-19th century played a significant role in the social and economic development and growth of the Village of Newmarket. Many early merchants with stores on Main Street lived in the nearby side streets, including grocer and liquor vendor Ingham Sharpe who is associated with 457 D’Arcy Street.

In 1860 the lands associated with 457 D’Arcy was under the ownership of Henry John Boulton, the son of D’Arcy Boulton. The Boulton family were a prominent and influential family involved in political and legal matters throughout the early 19th century. Boulton sold his land to Newmarket native and local merchant Ingham Sharpe in 1862. Ingham Sharpe owned a commercial property on Main Street in proximity to 457 D’Arcy Street and built the residence at 451 D’Arcy circa 1862, and the subject property in 1865. It is likely that the brick used for the construction was from Stickwood’s brickyard which produced both red and buff/yellow-coloured bricks during this time period. Local historians indicate that almost all of the-brick buildings built in Newmarket between 1860 until 1910 were likely constructed with bricks that originated at the Stickwood brickyard. The use of locally made bricks reflect the concentrated development and prosperity of the historic core. 457 D'Arcy Street stayed within the Sharpe family ownership until 1902, when it was sold out of the Sharpe family by Ingham Sharpe's widow, Barbara Sharpe.

Contextual Value

457 D'Arcy Street is important in supporting the 19th century character of the historic Village of Newmarket. Several residential side streets, including D'Arcy Street, were established in the village core, near the commercial Main Street. Located off or parallel to Main Street, the buildings along the side streets are comprised of predominantly one to two-and-a-half storey residences, primarily brick construction most using bricks from Stickwood's brickyard, with modest setbacks and include a range of architectural styles from that time period. 457 D'Arcy Street exhibits setback, massing, style, decorative details consistent with the historic village character.

Cultural Heritage Attributes

457 D'Arcy Street is a representative example of a residence built in a Neoclassical architectural style. The property contains the following heritage attributes that reflect this value:

- Large three-bay, two-storey residence built in a Neoclassical architectural style
- Brick construction
- Symmetrical façade
- Side gable roof with central gable peak
- Rhythmically and symmetrically placed rectangular windows topped with flat arch brick voussoirs and dressed stone sills
- Centrally placed front entrance topped with rectangular transom and flanked by sidelights

457 D'Arcy Street is directly associated with the historic Village of Newmarket. The property contains the following heritage attributes that reflect this value:

- Large three-bay, two-storey residence built in a Neoclassical architectural style
- Brick construction

451 D'Arcy Street is important in supporting the 19th century character of the historic Village of Newmarket. The property contains the following heritage attributes that reflect this value:

- Large three-bay, two-storey residence built in a Neoclassical architectural style
- Overall massing, setback, and decorative detail
- Location on D'Arcy Street
