Schedule "A" to By-law 25-32

Description

The property consists of a two-storey Italianate building constructed between 1871-1895.

Statement of Cultural Heritage Value or Interest

74 Main Street is a representative example of the Italianate architecture style. The two-storey brick building follows a rectangular plan with flat roof and ornate brick parapet which showcases a decorative band which consists of slightly raised buff brick organized to create a cross pattern topped by several courses of corbelled brick which are common features of commercial building constructed in the Italianate architectural style. The Italianate style often includes the use of dichromatic brickwork which is also expressed in the raised quoin and the decorative voussoirs comprised of alternating courses of buff and red brick which create an ornate hood mould on the rhythmically placed segmentally arched window openings on the upper storey of the façade. The symmetrical façade has a centrally placed and recessed storefront entryway with a single door topped by rectangular transom and flanked by large storefront window openings with wood panel surrounds which are common features of Italianate commercial buildings.

74 Main Street is associated with the commercial core in the historic Village of Erin and Thomas Carberry. The development of the commercial core in the mid-to-late 19th century played a significant role in the social and economic development and growth of the Village of Erin. The lot lines, layout, and built form of the historic core is consistent with typical 19th century rural commercial streetscapes found throughout Ontario. 74 Main Street was built as a commercial property between 1871 and 1895 for general store proprietor Thomas Carberry, who lived further up on Main Street at 162 Main Street.

Thomas Carberry was born on January 10, 1832, in Toronto. He was married to Jane Graham (1835-1921) in 1857, and they had at least six children. Thomas participated in both economic and civic matters in the Village of Erin. He was the town reeve in 1881 along with Dr. Henry Gear and J.J. Carroll and the operator of a general store at the subject property. Carberry later rented 74 Main Street to other business owners before selling the building in 1922. 74 Main Street was used predominately as a general store and a dry goods and grocery store before the building was subdivided in the 1940s into two separate buildings. 74 Main Street housed several important historic commercial businesses including Thomas Carberry's General Store, Ritchie & Ramesbottom's General Store, George Cook's grocery and dry goods store, and Larry Smiley's $0.50 and $1.00 store.

74 Main Street is important in supporting and maintaining the late 19th century and early 20th century character of the commercial core in the historic Village of Erin. The historic commercial core is distinguished by the uniformed setback of buildings which are predominantly constructed in the Italianate style. The streetscape is comprised of predominantly one- to two-and-a-half storey commercial buildings of primarily brick construction with narrow and uniformed setbacks along the street. Furthermore, the stylistic similarities between several properties including red brick construction, flat rooflines, decorative brickwork, and formal and balanced entrances, strengthens their contribution to the historic character of the area. 74 Main Street contributes to the historic fabric of the area and exhibits setback, massing, and decorative details consistent with the historic commercial core and is part of the streetwall along Main Street between Charles Street and Church Boulevard.
