Subsection 29(1) of the Ontario Heritage Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter 0.18 (the "Ontario Heritage Act") authorizes the council of a municipality to enact by-laws to designate property within the municipality, including buildings and structures on the property, to be of cultural heritage value or interest;

Introduction and Description of Property

22 Colborne Street is located on the south side of the street, mid-block between Clergy and Sydenham Streets in downtown Kingston. The approximately 286 square metre residential property includes a two-storey limestone house, constructed circa 1866, with third storey shed dormers on both the front and rear roof pitches.

Statement of Cultural Heritage Value/Statement of Significance

The property has design value or physical value because it is a rare, unique, representative or early example of a style, type, expression, material or construction method.

This property has physical/design value as a representative example of a classical limestone dwelling with a Georgian influenced simple rectangular side-gable plan. On the main façade the stones are smooth ashlar, laid in uniform courses, while the side and rear walls have hammer-dressed, uncoursed stonework. The off-set doorway is recessed with paneled reveals, with a semi-circular arched transom. The gable hood was likely a later addition.

The regular pattern of openings, with tall stone voussoirs and stone windowsills, reflects the Georgian style. The large shed dormers dominate the roof line, but the Georgian influence is still visible in the original roof profile with gable end parapets with ashlar corbels, and the stone chimney on the western roof ridgeline.

The property has contextual value because it is important in defining, maintaining or supporting the character of an area.

The property has contextual value because it is physically, functionally, visually or historically linked to its surroundings.

22 Colborne Street is significant in defining the character of the streetscape on Colborne Street, between Sydenham and Clergy streets. This area of downtown Kingston exhibits a continual pattern of reuse and replacement of existing structures that has left examples of building from the mid-19th century to the present.

The streetscapes' historic buildings vary in height from one-and-a-half to two-and-a-half storeys. The north side of Colborne Street includes an almost continuous row of exclusively red-brick 19th century duplexes and row houses; dotted by a few limestone buildings. The south side of Colborne Street is a mix of stone, frame and brick buildings, mostly single detached units. This variety in 19th century design and materiality creates a distinct character and a visually appealing and diverse streetscape.

With its shallow setback, symmetrical fenestration pattern, limestone construction, and location close to the lot lines, 22 Colborne Street shares a visual and historical relationship with its surroundings, particularly the 19th century brick houses at 9-11, 13-17, 25 and 30 Colborne Street, as well as the limestone building at 7 Colborne Street and the former Queen Street Methodist Church at 221 Queen Street. As part of this group of buildings, the subject building helps maintain the historic and eclectic character of this portion of Colborne Street.
