Statement of Significance Reason for Designation

William and Margaret Brown House, Brown/James House
387 Botsford Street
Newmarket, ON
L3Y 1S7

Reason for Designation

The property at 387 Botsford Street, also known as the William and Margaret Brown House, Brown/James House, is worthy of designation under Part IV, Section 29 of the Ontario Heritage Act, 1990 for its cultural heritage value or interest, and meets Ontario Regulation 9/06, for design/physical value, historical/associative value and contextual value.

Description of Property

387 Botsford Street is located on the north side of Botsford Street in the Town of Newmarket. The subject property contains a two-storey Gothic Revival building which was constructed circa 1883.

Statement of Cultural Heritage Value or Interest/Statement of Significance

Physical/Design Value

387 Botsford Street is a representative example of a building constructed in the Gothic Revival architectural style. The two-storey, buff brick building follows a L-shaped plan with an intersecting side gable roof with prominent front gable and overhanging eaves which is typical of the Gothic Revival design. The subject building includes rhythmically placed segmentally arched window openings with brick voussoirs. The façade showcases a one-storey bay window with flat roof and decorative brick banding and a formal centrally placed rectangular entryway topped by a segmentally arched transom which are all common characteristics of Gothic Revival design. 387 Botsford Street includes a classically inspired open front porch with an architrave supported by round wood columns which is also a feature associated with the Gothic Revival style.

Historical/Associative Value

387 Botsford Street is directly associated with the historic Village of Newmarket. The lots lines, layout, and built form of the historic village of Newmarket was well established in the mid-19th century and evident in a well-established commercial core found along Main Street South and the large presence of residences located along several side streets. The development of the commercial core and surrounding residential streetscapes in the mid-19th century played a significant role in the social and economic development and growth of the historic Village of Newmarket. It is likely that the brick used in the construction of the residence was from the Stickwood Brickyard, which produced both red and buff/yellow- coloured bricks during this time period. Local historians indicate that almost all the brick buildings built in Newmarket between 1860 and 1910 were likely constructed with bricks that originated at the Stickwood Brickyard. The use of locally made bricks reflects the concentrated development and prosperity of the historic core. 387 Botsford Street exhibits massing, setback, and decorative details which are consistent with 19th century development in the historic village of Newmarket. 387 Botsford Street reflect the work of local builder and carpenter William Brown. William Brown was born in 1847, although little is known about his early life, by 1874, he was living in Newmarket, where he married Margaret Hill. William Brown was a professional carpenter who constructed many residences on Botsford Street, Church Street, and Timothy Street, among others, in the late 19th century. Based on extant residences constructed by William Brown, most were of brick construction and relatively utilitarian in design. Many of his buildings possessed front porches or verandahs and were constructed on an L-shaped plan and constructed with brick. 387 Botsford Street reflects the work of builder William Brown who played a role in the construction of several 19th century buildings in the historic village.

Contextual Value

387 Botsford Street is important in supporting the 19th century character of the historic Village of Newmarket. Located off or parallel to Main Street, the buildings along the side streets are comprised of predominantly one to two-and-a-half storey residences, primarily brick construction, most using bricks from Stickwood's brickyard, with modest setbacks and include a range of architectural styles from that period. 387 Botsford Street exhibits setback, massing, style, decorative details consistent with the historic village character.

387 Botsford Street is visually and historically linked to the adjacent building to the east (393 Botsford Street). The buildings were made by the same builder and share the same façade orientation, overall massing, height, setback and similar decorative detailing.
