SCHEDULE "A"*REASONS FOR DESIGNATION

The property at 120 Howland Avenue is recommended for designation under Part IV of the Ontario Heritage Act for its cultural resource value or interest. St. Alban's Chapel was completed in 1897 according to the designs of the Toronto architectural firm of Richard C. Windeyer and Son. Richard C. Windeyer, Sr., in solo practice, prepared the plans for the adjoining St. Alban the Martyr Church and See House (archbishop's residence), which were in place in 1885 and 1887, respectively. The buildings form a precinct at the northwest corner of Howland Avenue and Barton Avenue where St. Alban's Chapel is located on the west side of Howland, north of the church and See House. The Chapel housed St. Alban's School for Boys from 1898 until its closure in 1911. Beginning in the 1930s, the building served as the parish hall for the congregation. In 1964, St. Alban's Chapel was leased to St. George's College (since 1991, Royal St. George's), which developed a campus in this location. The Chapel is now known as "Ketchum Hall" in honour of Dr. Frank Ketchum, a member of the school's inaugural board of directors.

St. Alban's Chapel is an integral component of the St. Alban's precinct where St. Alban the Martyr Church at #100 Howland and the See House at #110 Howland are designated under Part IV of the Ontario Heritage Act. The Chapel is historically notable for its association with the church, which was planned as Toronto's Anglican cathedral before St. James' Cathedral formally received that distinction. Architecturally, the Gothic Revival design of St. Alban's Chapel complements the church and See House. With the latter buildings, St. Alban's Chapel is an institutional landmark in the West Annex neighbourhood.

The heritage attributes of St. Alban's Chapel consist of the exterior walls and roof. Rising two stories above a stone foundation with window openings, the structure is clad with red brick and trimmed with brick, stone and wood. The rectangular plan is covered by a gable roof with a large chimney on the east end. Under a gable with flared eaves, a projecting frontispiece with buttresses is asymmetrically placed on the south façade. Steps lead to a set of entrance doors that are set in a segmental-arched opening beneath a flat-headed window opening in the second storey. On the remainder of the south wall, piers organize the fenestration. To the right (east) of the entry, a large segmental-arched opening is positioned in the first storey under a tripartite window opening in the second floor. On the east elevation facing Howland Avenue, the chimney divides the wall where single segmental-arched window openings in the first floor are surmounted by larger flat-headed window openings that contain pairs of windows. A secondary entrance, piers and irregularly placed window openings mark the north wall, while the rear (west) elevation is concealed by a series of additions that are not included in the Reasons for Designation.
