REASONS FOR DESIGNATION

THE RIGHT HOUSE35-41 King Street East,
Hamilton, Ontario

In 1890 to 1893, Hamilton merchant Thomas C. Watkins built the new premises for The Right House on Gore Park, heralding the arrival in the city of a contemporary innovation—retail marketing on the grand scale. The Right House was bigger, bolder and better equipped than any of its neighbouring rowhouse stores. Architect William Stewart & Son had been able to translate this new merchandising spirit into architectural terms with considerable success and a good measure of Victorian flamboyance.

In the interest of promoting its "modern" aspect, The Right House design employed many of the fashionable features of the day: running arcades, columns and stone arches busily articulated the street facade; contemporary pressed metalwork provided the crowning decoration to eaves and parapet (now gone); window openings contained so much plate glass that the building was nicknamed the Crystal Palace; and modern conveniences such as the elevator offered an added degree of comfort and class to shopping excursions. In terms of subsequent architectural developments, Watkins' building was not only the first but it is now also the last of the large nineteenth century department stores to survive intact in the city. As such, The Right House is a unique example of its kind in Hamilton.

That entrepreneur Watkins chose to locate on the Gore was in keeping with a city tradition, for the Gore was the commercial focus of Hamilton for both retail and wholesale businesses. Furthermore, Gore Park was a major city attraction for Hamiltonians at the turn of the century; its lush mature trees, flower beds and graceful fountain provided a setting not only pleasant for people but also highly complimentary to the surrounding architecture. Then, as today, Watkins' store related well to the site, for its design was both harmonious and distinctive, and its size was scaled appropriately for people and open square. While the Gore streetscape has continued to evolve—new buildings have replaced old and facades have changed according to fashion—the Right House has maintained its place of prominence. The building still serves as a major anchor block on the Gore, and, except for minor changes, retains its original appearance and vitality.

Of particular significance are the south and east facades on the exterior and the cast iron columns on the first floor of the interior.
