REASONS FOR DESIGNATION

THE FEDERAL/SUN LIFE BUILDING

42 James Street South,
Hamilton, Ontario

In 1905-06, the Federal Life Assurance Company expanded its home office with the construction of a new eight-storey facility on the northwest corner of James and Main Streets. Designed by Montreal architects Finley and Spence, this imposing and dignified edifice injected a new degree of monumentality and stature to the city's major intersection, that was continued in the later Mercantile Bank and Bank of Montreal.

Typical of the early twentieth-century office blocks, the architectural design is derivative of old-world models, in this case Florentine palaces, but freely re-interpreted to suit the needs of an office building. A contemporary architectural journal admired the Federal Life design as "the proper way to escape monotony of book-renaissance and give our buildings both the touch of the individual designer and the touch of our own generation".

There is little to indicate on the exterior that this building made history as Hamilton's first modern steel skeleton construction. Concealed behind a facade of granite and terra cotta is the load-bearing skeletal framework which splayed at the top for the overhanging eaves. Now gone, this original, over-sized cornice, constructed of pressed metal and embellished with enormous brackets and mouldings, once provided a dramatic terminus to the building and a bold definition to the corner. Likewise, the two ground floors of rusticated granite with central doorway have been altered, leaving only the upper walls, windows, string courses, and wreathed circular windows of the original design in tact.

Historically, the Federal Life Assurance Company is significant as one of a few major financial institutions to originate in Hamilton. Begun in 1882, the company had developed into a 28 million dollar business by the time Sun Life Assurance Company purchased it in 1915. As Sun Life's divisional headquarters from 1915 to 1976, 42 James Street South played an important role in the city's financial activity. In addition, the spacious, two-storey public room on the top floor served as the U.S. Consulate from 1928 to its closing in 1953.

In summary, the Federal/Sun Life building is considered to be of local significance. Today, Hamilton has only a few reminders left of an era when office buildings were once designed in an elaborate manner, and when a number of institutions still had their headquarters in the city.
