SCHEDULE "A"REASONS FOR DESIGNATIONDescription

The property at 606 College Street is worthy of designation under Part IV of the Ontario Heritage Act for its cultural heritage value or interest, and meets the criteria for municipal designation prescribed by the Province of Ontario under the categories of design or physical value and contextual value. Located on the north side of College Street between Clinton Street and Grace Street, the Pylon Theatre was constructed in 1935 as a market building that was converted into a theatre in 1939 according to the designs of Toronto architect Bernard Swartz. The footprints of the legendary British stage and screen actress Dame Anna Neagle, who attended the opening of the venue in October 1939, were preserved in a concrete slab in the foyer. The complex was later known as the Golden Princess Theatre and, more recently, the Royal. The property was included on the City of Toronto Inventory of Heritage Properties in 2005.

Statement of Cultural Heritage Value

The cultural heritage value of the property at 606 College Street is related to its design or physical value as a representative example of a movie theatre from the World War II era that is designed in the Art Deco style.

The Pylon Theatre also has cultural heritage value for its contextual value as a local landmark on College Street, west of Bathurst Street. The building stands out amongst the adjoining commercial buildings and, with the neighbouring College Street Baptist Church (1888) at #506 and former Loyal Orange Lodge at #542, the Pylon Theatre is a recognized heritage property.

Heritage Attributes

The heritage attributes of the Pylon Theatre related to its cultural heritage value as a representative example of a World War II era movie theatre designed in the Art Deco style are found on the principal (south) facade and the roof above, consisting of:

- The two-storey principal (south) façade, with its application of buff brick for the cladding and trim.
- The organization of the lower storey into three parts with a central entrance flanked by storefronts and a box office.
- The projecting semi-circular marquee protecting the entry and box office.
- The centrally-placed, oversized and curved parapet that rises above the roof and supports a sign tower with a projecting vertical sign.

- On either side of the parapet, the treatment of the upper storey with curved edges, flat-headed window openings, and cast stone band courses that are flanked by banded brick pilasters with stylized capitals extending above the edge of the roof.
