SCHEDULE "A"
REASONS FOR DESIGNATION
(STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE)

8 Market Street (John Hallam Warehouse)

Description

The property at 8 Market Street is worthy of designation under Part IV, Section 29 of the Ontario Heritage Act for its cultural heritage value, and meets the criteria for municipal designation prescribed by the Province of Ontario under all three categories of design, associative and contextual values. Located on the west side of Market Street between The Esplanade and Front Street East, the John Hallam Warehouse (1899-1900) is a six storey commercial building that was listed on the City of Toronto Inventory of Heritage Properties in 1984.

Statement of Cultural Heritage Value

The property at 8 Market Street has cultural heritage value as a well-crafted representative example of a commercial warehouse with features of the Romanesque Revival style popular at the close of the 19th century when the John Hallam Warehouse was designed. With its application of the round-arched motif associated with Romanesque designs, the appearance of the warehouse complemented the South St. Lawrence Market on the opposite side of Market Street that was altered during the same period by Hallam's architect, A. R. Denison.

The John Hallam Warehouse is valued as an example of the work of Toronto architect A. R. Denison, a member of one of the city's prominent founding families who received this commission from politician John Hallam in 1899 and completed the project following his client's death. During his career as both a solo practitioner and in partnership, Denison demonstrated his dexterity with a wide variety of building types, with the Athenaeum Club (1891), the designated heritage property at 173 Church Street among his best-known projects. Denison's designs for 8 Market Street followed the extensive renovations he undertook at South St. Lawrence Market (1898, incorporating Toronto's Second City Hall) on the opposite side of the street.

The property at 8 Market Street also has contextual value for its historical, visual and physical relationship with its surroundings in the St. Lawrence Neighbourhood. When completed in 1900, the warehouse rose five stories (the attic level was a later addition) to tower over most of the other buildings in the locality and remains a significant visual presence on Market Street. With the adjacent Armory Hotel at 10-12 Market Street, the neighbouring Edward Leadlay Warehouse at 87 Front Street East (at the southwest corner of Market), and the landmark South St. Lawrence Market (incorporating Toronto's Second City Hall), opposite, the John Hallam Warehouse anchors the west side of Market Street and is an integral part of this historic precinct that developed because of its proximity to Toronto's original marketplace and the waterfront beyond.

Heritage Attributes

The heritage attributes of the property at 8 Market Street are:

- The building historically known as the John Hallam Warehouse

- The placement, setback and orientation of the building on the west side of Market Street
- The scale, form and massing on the five-storey rectangular plan, extended by a later attic addition
- The materials, with red brick cladding and brick and stone detailing
- The roof that is stepped back at the attic storey (an addition) with dormer windows on the east slope
- The organization of the principal (east) façade above the first-floor storefront (which has been altered) by brick piers that are surmounted by arches over the fourth storey
- The fenestration on the east façade, where contrasting stone band courses extend across the tops of the flat-headed window openings that have stone sills
