DESCRIPTION OF LAND

REASONS FOR THE DESIGNATION OF "STONEHOUSE\LAWRENCE HOUSE"

The "Stonehouse\Lawrence" house, built circa 1871, is recommended for designation for architectural reasons as it is one of a few 19th century cut fieldstone houses surviving in Scarborough. It is Upper Canadian Vernacular style in its architecture and consists of three bays on the main facade. The cream coloured brick quoining surrounding the openings and at the corners is not common in Scarborough. The main entrance includes the original door, sidelights and transom. The windows opening from the main floor retain the original six/six double hung sash style common in Upper Canada in the 19th century. The peaked gothic style window in the front gable adds charm to this facade. The rear summer kitchen is attached to the main house but is single storey in height and constructed of red brick with cream coloured brick quoining at the rear corners only. The entire structure rests on its original stone foundation and faces east.

The house originally served as the primary farm dwelling for John and George Stonehouse when the farm consisted of south half of Lot 23 in the Fourth Concession, Scarborough. About 1920, John Lawrence acquired the farm and for the next 50 years few changes were made to the exterior, although the original east veranda has been removed. It was typical of centre-hall plan farmhouses of the era with its rear summer kitchen. As modern development consumed the farms, few of these rural homes survived.

The Stonehouse/Lawrence farmhouse remains as a good example of a cut fieldstone and brick dwelling of the latter half of the 19th century.
