Dear Sirs:

Re: Notice of Intention to Designate under The Ontario
Heritage Act

This is to advise that the Council of the Township of Enniskillen passed a motion on April 16, 1985 to cause a notice of intention to designate the Imperial Oil Ltd. Oil Springs Pumping Station, located at the NW corner of Lot 17, Concession 1, Township of Enniskillen, as a property of architectural and historical value under Part IV of the Ontario Heritage Act, 1980, RSO Chapter 337.

The notice of intention to designate the property was served on the owner of land and was published in a newspaper having general circulation in the municipality, once for each of three consecutive weeks, and no objections were received within the 30 day objection period. I have included a copy of the Notice that was published in the local newspaper for your interest. The Township Council will subsequently pass a By-law designating the property and a copy of the By-law will be forwarded to your office in due course.

Yours truly,

A handwritten signature in cursive script that reads 'Robert C. White'.

Robert C. White
Clerk-Treasurer.

NOTICE

IN THE MATTER OF THE ONTARIO HERITAGE ACT, 1980, R.S.O. CHAPTER 337

And in The Matter of the Lands and Premises at The Following Municipal Address in The Province of Ontario.

Notice of Intention to Designate:

Take Notice that the Council of the Corporation of the Township of Enniskillen intends to designate the property, including lands and buildings, at the following municipal address as a property of architectural and historical value or interest under Part IV of the Ontario Heritage Act, 1980, R.S.O. Chapter 337.

a) Municipal Address: Imperial Oil Ltd. Oil Springs Pumping Station located at the NW Corner of Lot 17, Conc. 1, Township of Enniskillen

Reasons for Proposed Designation:

Historical Reasons:

The Imperial Oil Limited Oil Springs Pumping Station is the last remaining structure on site of approximately ten such stations built to receive oil from the Oil Springs and Petrolia fields and transport it via rail and pipeline to refineries at Petrolia and Sarnia.

It was established in 1915 by certain Oil Springs oil producers weary of the monopoly on the transport of crude then held by the Canadian Oil Producing and Refining Company, an English concern. One of the founding producers, J.H. Fairbank Estate, provided the land to Imperial Oil. The producers also negotiated with the New York Central Railway for a siding and loading rack. Imperial Oil excavated an underground receiving tank from which the crude was lifted by steam powered pumps to an elevated tank from which it descended into the railway's tank cars.

Eventually Ontario Hydro arrived at Oil Springs and an electric motor supplanted the steam pump. The primary receiver & pumping station continued with periodic interruptions until October, 1955 when Imperial Oil decided local recalyving and pump stations, including those at Petrolia and Bothwell, had outlived their usefulness and closed at local stations.

The local producers, however, accepted the station from Imperial and continued to employ it co-operatively. Imperial Oil contributed $100 a month toward the operating costs and the late Charles Fairbank, Petrolia, was the volunteer supervisor.

Ultimately Imperial Oil became unable to subsidize the costs of the station and notified producers that it would be closed. By 1972, most producers had installed tankage in their fields and were able to ship directly to the refinery by tank truck. The last shipment from the Oil Springs stations was in July, 1973 and the station was closed in August of that year.

Architectural Reasons:

The building is typical of industrial construction in the area and of the period, being wood, board and batten and having an earthen floor. An interesting installation is the water collection system for the steam pumps. Roof water ran from the eavestroughing down a long pipe to an underground tank. The building is in a rustic setting, characteristic of the Oil Springs fields, and picturesque partly because most other structures of its type have long since disappeared and there
