STATEMENT OF REASONS FOR DESIGNATION

The Horticulture Building is of historical and architectural value to the City. Built in 1914, it is one of eight permanent exhibition halls built for the Central Canada Exhibition at Lansdowne Park. Established in 1888, the Annual Exhibition is the oldest continuously operating agricultural fair in Canada. The Horticulture Building has been a critical part of that exhibition for more than 70 years, doubling its function during the winter season as a public curling rink. Designed by Francis C. Sullivan, an Ottawa architect associated with Frank Lloyd Wright, the Horticulture Building is an excellent Canadian interpretation of the Prairie Style. As one of Canada's earliest expressions of modernism, it significantly contributes to the history of Canadian architecture.

The front portion of the building, which contains two storeys, retains a remarkable amount of its original Prairie Style interior design. The second floor contains a major room in the centre, with clerestory windows above, and flanking rooms on either side, all with original interior detailing. There is also a second floor balcony overlooking the main hall to the rear.

The one storey additions on the east side are not of architectural or historical significance and are excluded from the designation.
